FAITH & FAMILY 2020

Our purpose is to explore and define a sustainable ministry model with the outcome of a maturing Christian faith in children, youth and families.

Ponder this quote taken from the book Almost Christian: What the Faith of Our Teenagers Is Telling the American Church, by Kenda Creasy Dean, "Since the religious and spiritual choices of American teenagers echo, with astonishing clarity, the religious and spiritual choices of the adults who love them, lackadaisical faith is not young people's issue, but ours."

If this leaves you wondering about our own youth and families and their connection to God, please accept our invitation to join us at one of several Community Conversation Gatherings this summer!

The first two gatherings have been scheduled, we would love to see you at one of these events:

Tue., June 25, 7:30-9 p.m.
Home of Eric & Kathy Luoma

Wed., June 26, 7:30-9 p.m.
Trinity Lutheran Church

Sign-up sheets available at the Information Desk in the Commons or online at

Can't make it to one of these gatherings? More gatherings will be scheduled during summer and early fall, please check later at www.trinitylc.org. Your voice and faith story are valuable—we hope to hear from you!

It is so exciting to be part of a church that, in the midst of a growing ministry to families, takes a proactive stance toward research and recommends best practices to be able to sustain a ministry model where all of us can...

Love. Transform. Serve.

PASTOR DAN

POFFENBERGER

"My Lord God, I have no idea where I am going. I do not see the road ahead of me. I cannot know for certain where it will end. Nor do I really know myself, and the fact that I think that I am following your will does not mean that I am actually doing so. But I believe that the desire to please you does in fact please you. And I hope I have that desire in all that I am doing. I hope that I will never do anything apart from that desire. And I know that if I do this you will lead me by the right road though I may know nothing about it. Therefore will I trust you always though I may seem to be lost and in the shadow of death. I will not fear, for you are ever with me, and you will never leave me to face my perils alone."

— Thomas Merton,
Thoughts in Solitude

Over Memorial Day, Gretchen and I traveled with some friends to New York City to celebrate Gretchen's birthday and to have the adventure of exploring the "City that Never Sleeps." What an amazing place New York is—way too much to get my head around in a few short days. From the beauty of Central Park to the bustle of Times Square, the hub of Rockefeller Plaza, the food of Chelsea Market (home to Food Network for you foodies), all the way to the majesty of the rising 9/11 Memorial—it is stunning to take in.

The highlight of the trip, however, (for me) was a trip to Madison Avenue Baptist Church, a progressive American Baptist neighborhood congregation (it's tagline is "Not your Average Baptist Church") to hear a facebook friend of mine, the Rev. Susan Sparks preach. Susan was a trial lawyer, a stand-up comic and now a vibrant, faithful pastor of a very diverse New York City congregation. I became acquainted with Susan through her most recent book*; she is a good theologian. After a long walk on a beautiful Sunday morning, we were warmly welcomed at the front door of the church. It was a more-familiar-than-I-expected worship service, full of music, prayer and a fabulous sermon.

The quote from Thomas Merton served as the central focus of the message and it has stayed in my head for the past couple of weeks. I especially like the thought "I believe that the desire to please you (God) does in fact, please you." I have often longed to please God—from the deep, abiding commitment that fueled my ordination to the fleeting, everyday thoughts I have just in the moment.

There is something tremendously reassuring about this thought - that simply my desire to please God is enough and that the living out of that desire is important—but perhaps secondary to the desire itself. It allows me to be gracious to myself, forgiving and lighthearted about my mistakes, inabilities and shortcomings. It also honors my desire, and, actually brings about more desire.

I have never tried to please God as some way to affect my own salvation but, like the desire to please the people of my life, it is an aspiration born out of love. Who else would I want to please more than the One who made me, surrounds me, walks with me, graces me and who has given me every good thing I have ever enjoyed? I desire to please God out of a sense of gratitude for each and every day—each and every sacred day of this all-too-short life of mine.

Gratitude is the result of awareness, and it is the expression of faith.

I often wonder about the end result of my preaching and teaching. I would guess that one way to look at it would be to say I want to connect people with God in a loving relationship that produces gratitude for this sacred life.

New York was great for a lot of reasons. Reminding me of Thomas Merton's wisdom was an unexpected gift.

a summer engagement

Here in Minnesota and Wisconsin, we love summer. It's a season filled with all kinds of wonderful engagements: cabin time, swimming, boating, fishing, reading novels, fresh air, long walks, weddings, family vacations, and, of course, Drive-In worship.

The Trinity staff invites you to another kind of summer engagement – an engagement of the soul. Summer is a great time to connect, to try something fun and new, and to experience the presence of God in your life. We look forward to sharing this summer engagement with you!

Summer Book Study with Allison Siburg

Tuesday Evenings - July 2 & 16, 7- 8 p.m.

Water Street Inn, 101 Water St. S, Stillwater

Find us in the back patio area. Please purchase a copy of the book on your own.

In Faithist: How an Atheist Found Common Ground with the Religious, author Chris Stedman draws on his work organizing interfaith and secular communities, his academic study of religion, and his own experience to argue for the necessity of bridging the growing chasm between atheists and the religious.

As someone who has stood on both sides of the divide, Stedman is uniquely positioned to present a way for atheists and the religious to find common ground and work together to make this world—the one world we can all agree on—a better place.

Read, mark up, doodle in, highlight, and come contribute your voice to the discussion as we read this new book together!

Please contact Allison Siburg to sign up for this summer book study at asiburg@trinitylc.org.

Thank you to the 100 golfers and 35 additional dinner-only guests that support the 5th Annual Take on Hunger Golf Tournament on June 3.

This year we honored Jeff & Kristie Anderson's dedicated leadership of the Loaves & Fishes ministry.

They have blessed our community with 25 years of faithful and exemplary leadership.

The event was a joy-filled afternoon of fellowship, some great golf shots, and a lot of laughs while raising much needed funding for mission efforts.

We were blessed with the best weather of the first half of 2013!

We are looking forward to next year's event on Mon., June 2, 2014!

We hope you can join us.

STEWARDS

OF GOD'S ABUNDANCE

WHO IS YOUR FINANCIAL ADVISOR? –OR– SUPPORTING EACH OTHER IN ALL WAYS

The Business section of a recent Sunday newspaper was headlined “The Age of Austerity.” The subheading read “Young or old, people are worried that the recovery is not for real and likely to be short-lived.” Then the economic column on that same front page started out “Few things cause more generalized public anger than a spike in gasoline prices. This has been especially sharp in Minnesota, and we are still in the unusual position of having prices higher than the national average.” Living here, in the St. Croix Valley, gas prices have an immediate effect on our personal finances because we are so reliant on our cars with few or no mass transit options.

Yet, there is an imbalance and discomfort because we continue to be immersed in a culture of consumerism. We’re encouraged to want more, new, better, regardless of need, and we’re led to believe that everyone else is on that path and probably ahead of us.

Despite the overpowering role of money all around us, it remains the one thing that has been extremely hard to talk about in church and in personal relationships. We can talk about and support each other in our pain, disappointments, illness and heartaches of many kinds. If we are weighted down and burdened with worry about our personal finances, it can be hard to see and feel God’s abundance. We should be able to talk about that too, without shame or judgment or question of motive.

What if we really live and support each other with our sixth Characteristic of Vibrant Stewards? “Vibrant Stewards embrace financial health as an expression of faith. We allow money to flow to and through our lives in ways that nourish us and our world.” God calls us to be disciples as whole persons, all the time, engaged in all aspects of life on earth. And in this day and age, life on earth involves money.

So, this month, consider this question: Who is your financial advisor? Or, do you think you don’t have enough money to have a financial advisor?

Each of us should have a financial advisor, no matter how young or old we are, how much or how little money we have. For some it can be parents, but for others it can be grandparents, aunts or uncles, or special friends and mentors. Five- year-olds need financial advisors. New graduates and college students need financial advisors. Young people getting married face all kinds of new financial challenges as they combine incomes, desires, needs and different experiences with money.

It has been proven that money does not create happiness. Not having enough to meet daily needs, or not being able to manage money well can, however, result in a great deal of angst. Having wise and knowledgeable counsel and mentoring support in financial matters – a financial advisor – helps us to become financially healthy.

In this column and the “Living in Gratitude” section of Trinity’s website, we will continue to share resources for financial health. We strive to become as supportive to each other in financial matters as we are in others.

In the summer, most of us are involved in some way with weddings, high school and college graduates, and students home from school. All of

Be a steward of God's abundance

As you share Trinity’s mission to offer the love of God to everyone, call people into a closer transforming relationship with Jesus, and serve our neighbors in the world, please join other generous stewards who are growing in the grace of giving and make a financial Giving Plan. – growing in the grace of giving –

I admit that I enjoy reading bumper stickers! Some are cleverly written, some make me laugh, some are thought provoking and some are, well, downright distasteful. But, I do believe those stickers say something about the person who owns the vehicle or, in some cases, maybe previously owned it (ever tried to scrape one off?)

I only have two on the bumper of my aging Acura and both profess my affinity for Portuguese Water Dogs. That's all I will ever tell the world about myself via a bumper sticker. Forget religious and political slogans—I just don't go there!

The other day a car in front of me boasted the following, "If you're going thru Hell, keep going!" I liked that. It made me smile and immediately brought to mind the 23rd Psalm, "Even though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for you are with me, your rod and your staff, they comfort me."

The key word is through. No matter what we may be facing in life, whatever trial, storm, darkness or valley we feel we are currently experiencing, we must know and believe that God will bring us safely through it. Sometimes, it is the valley of the shadow of death that one passes through to eternal life. At other times, God works through others to bring us peace and healing now, today, while we are still in this world. As a result, we live as Easter people – people who live with hope, who believe in Life as only Jesus can give.

Going thru hell? Keep on going – it's the only way out! But know that you don't go through it alone. Jesus said, "I am with you always....." (Mt 28:20) and through the Holy Spirit, we have access to God's love and ever abiding presence. BeFriender Ministers have also been called and commissioned to walk with you through life's ups and downs. They're experienced in the art and heart of listening and gifted with compassion and mercy. In them, you will find the love of Christ with you and beside you. Look for a brochure in the Commons area describing their ministry as well as one that offers scriptures and prayers for hope and healing. Questions? Please call Pastor Candee at 439-7400, ext. 107 or cmoser@trinitylc.org.

these situations present opportunities for us to either be or seek out a personal financial advisor. There are wonderful free resources on the website www.smartaboutmoney.org (look in the "resource library" or "tools & resources"). This website is a program of the National Endowment for Financial Education, a nonprofit, noncommercial foundation dedicated to inspiring empowered financial decision making through every stage of life.

I am going to create opportunities to share some brochures from that website with the young people who mean so much to me:

- 40 Money Management Tips Every College Student Should Know
- Marriage and Money
- Your Spending, Your Savings, Your Future

We are stewards, on behalf of God, of all that we have and all that we are. Being financially healthy frees us to live a productive and joyful life in service to God. We would love to begin a dialogue about how we can develop the courage, comfort, trust and resources to better support each other in financial matters. The Vibrant Stewardship Team welcomes your thoughts, contact Julie Jolivet at jjolivet@trinitylc.org or Ann Wolff at wolff701@msn.com.

MISSION MINISTRIES

Tom Thiets
Director of Missions

In the Presence of Angels

About 18 years ago, Pastor Chuck Claus organized a small group for retirees here at Trinity. As the group formed they began to plan their calendar of activities; they also elected to explore possible mission projects. Pastor Chuck found an interesting project through Prison Fellowship called Angel Tree. This program seeks donors to provide Christmas gifts for the children of prisoners. Gloria Williamson and her husband, Tom, stepped forward to lead Trinity's Angel Tree Christmas mission program. "We just thought Trinity should be doing some prison ministry" said Gloria with a smile and a twinkle in her eye, "And then we decided that Trinity would provide gifts to the children of 75 prisoners."

Since that initial start, back in the 90s, Trinity has delivered Christmas joy to over 1100 children. This ministry quietly appears in the Narthex each year after Thanksgiving as a small Christmas tree decorated with angel tags bearing the names and ages of the children. Congregation members select the tags, buy and wrap the presents and volunteers deliver them to the children the Sunday before Christmas.

A few years into the ministry, Gloria decided to expand the scope of the effort to include a $20 gift card for the caregivers of each child since they too could use a little Christmas love and joy. While Trinity has been providing gifts through the Angel Tree program for 15 years under Gloria's leadership, she will be the first to say she is not alone in this mission. To date, there has been an enthusiastic team of angels surrounding her providing over 4,000 hours of service. Gloria always stresses that the success of this ministry is because of the wonderful team members who have continued to serve year after year.

During the worship services on Sunday, May 12, a representative from Prison Fellowship recognized Gloria's dedication to this ministry, as well as the generosity of the congregation that has faithfully responded each year to purchase the presents and gift cards. While Gloria humbly accepts this recognition, she desires to recognize the team members that have served with her over the years: Judy Darrington, Jerry and Cathy Helmberger, Jacque Johnson, Jayme Junker, Kathy Karnuth, Wendy Klemz, Pam Lindberg, Jeri Slachta, Phyllis Smith, Lisa Thiets, Sheila-Marie Untiedt, Sandy Wendt and Debbie Wishard. We must note, it is Jerry and Cathy Helmberger who generously deliver most of the gifts the Sunday before Christmas.

So, the next time you see Gloria or any of her team members, wish them a merry Christmas and keep your eyes open for the Angel Tree to appear again this November. Also, keep your heart open for your next opportunity to be an angel.

*Peace,
Tom Thiets*
