An Academy program is to be defined as a developmental program run by professionally educated staff and professionally maintained by a club's administration. An Academy program is about providing opportunities for young players who show a passion and affinity for the game to be challenged and encouraged to explore playing the game skillfully and creatively. There are no tryouts for the academy level soccer teams. Playing time is not guaranteed for each player like in recreational soccer. There is a higher level of commitment by the player and parents in terms of time and effort in order to strive toward a better caliber of player through academy soccer.

In simple terms, Select soccer means that players are chosen (selected) for positions on teams using a means of assessment, such as a tryout. Positions on teams are secured based on performance. This differs from recreational soccer where players may be placed on teams simply by signing up. Select soccer is for serious soccer players who want professional instruction and who desire a more competitive environment with other players who share the same goals. Most Select soccer players tend to be those that want to play for their high school and even possibly in college. Players should not try out for a competitive team simply because some of their friends are. They should tryout because they really love to play soccer, want to learn to play at a more advanced level, and are willing to commit the time and effort required to become the best soccer player possible.
