A TAP ON THE ALL-AMERICA DOOR: IT'S SLAM-BAM-ZAM

by Jim Kittilsby

Doors were closed to PLU's All-American aspirants from 1966 through 1974, but a trio of Lutes have been summoned to the pigskin pantheon in as many years.

Defensive tackle Larry Green claimed the scroll in 1975; end Al Bessette soaked in the 1976 splendor, while safety Steve Irion joined the elite fold last year.

A senior linebacker may tap on the door seeking admission to the shrine at the season's end. Then again, it may be a forced entry, not unlike the way he plays the game, with a sock and a salutation: "Slam-bam, John Zam!"

John Zamberlin, one of eight returning starters on the defensive unit, was a second team All-American pick in 1977. He sharpened his pass interception skills (11 last year, a NWC record) by patrolling centerfield for the Lute baseball nine, where he was also considered a professional prospect.

On the weights all summer, the 6-2, 235 pound behemoth can bench press 440 pounds, 15 more than the University of Washington's brawniest ironworker.

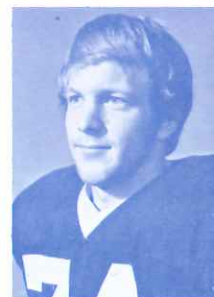

Another heralded defender, senior cornerback Brian Anderson was a second team all-league pick in 1977.

Against the Alums, who trail in the series 5-1, the Lutes are expected to burrow and blimp in equal measure as they did during last season's 8-2 campaign. Coach Frosty Westering expects considerable footage from his "All in the Family" play. Junior son Brad, who passed for 1019 yards, can spot his 6-5, 218 brother Scott, a tight end transfer from UCLA, in nearly any crowd. To thwart the balloon patrol, senior fullback Mark Accimus leans on his 657 yard 1977 credentials.

LUTE-A-TOOT

TOM WAHL (62), sophomore grid guard and grappler from Hoquiam, played under his father as a prepster in Raymond.

TOM ALEXANDER (65), senior guard, was a grid and diamond jewel at Auburn HS, where he served as a baseball aide last spring.

GUY ELLISON (25), sophomore running back and punter from Auburn, was a Lute baseball starter as a frosh infielder.

STEVE THOMAS, Sports Director of KTNT Radio, 1400 kc, will be mikeside for all Lute football and basketball games.

TWO DOMES WITHIN THE DOME? FROSTY, SLICK ARE POLISHED

by Jim Kittilsby

Within the confines of this palatial playpen parade two coaches eminently qualified to conduct skull sessions.

Their craniological credits include polished pates and astute football minds. They stand tall as the Inner Domes.

PLU's Frosty Westering ("I used to have a crew cut, but the crew bailed out") and UPS' Ron "Slick" Simonson may have flunked the tonsorial test, but the inner chambers are fertile.

Westering, the winningest (percentage) coach in PLU history, with a 41-15 Lute ledger going into 1978, will put his blimp and burrow multiple split wing T to the test against the Log Jam, a defensive barricade long a trademark of Simonson. The first year Logger head coach was the UPS defensive coordinator for five years. In the past three autumns, the green and gold led the Northwest in rushing defense.

PLU, coming off an 8-2 season and the NAIA District 1 crown, is looking for its first win in this series since 1974. UPS, getting the last chew in the 1977 23-21 nail-biter, finished 6-4 for the campaign.

Lute luminaries include junior quarterback Brad Westering, who completed a series-record 21 passes for 262 yards against the Loggers last year. Brother Scott, a 6-5, 218 receiver, who transferred from UCLA, and the herculean hulk, middle linebacker John Zamberlin, 235, are other standouts.

Ivy Iverson (see photo) mans the controls of the Logger machine. Tenacious Mark Madland's 1977 credits include a hand in 157 tackles while on linebacker patrol. Steve Levenseller's multiple skills will be seen in the secondary.

LOG 'N LUTE

IVY IVERSON (8), junior Logger quarterback, poison in UPS' 23-12 win over Montana, threw for 939 yards last year.

JEFF BAER (35), junior battering ram, took over the Lute fullback slot following a knee injury to Mark Accimus.

KEITH CLAYPOOLE (87), senior defensive end, forms a corner of the Log barrier which limited foes to just 910 ground yards in 1977.

STEVE KIENBERGER (82), who has rung a few bells as PLU's defensive end, has designs on a career as a professional musician.

COYOTES ONCE, IN CALDWELL STUCK, FIND REFUGE ON THE GRID OF BUC

by Jim Kittilsby

Not unlike a long, lost relative, Whitworth Pirate coach Daryl Squires found his way to College of Idaho's bedside last spring when the Coyote football program expired following an extended illness.

His inheritance includes four C of I transfers, who, along with eleven other relocated athletes, should perk up the performance of the Buccaneers.

Whitworth, 2-7 last year, 1-5 in Northwest Conference action, measured 14 starters for graduation gowns last May and will be in a building situation.

The Caldwell, Idaho clan includes offensive linemen Fred Mathews, a second team All-NWC pick in 1977, John Perkins, and Sam Wiseman, along with linebacker Frank Johnson.

Heralded returnees are senior tackle Mike Christianson, 225, a first team all-conference selection, and junior Ken Pecka, a second team all-star. Pecka, who tied PLU's John Zamberlin for the loop's interception title with eight pass thefts, excels in the secondary, but may be summoned to the quarterback controls.

The Bucs, the league doormat on defense last year, yielding 394 yards per game, fell to Eastern Oregon 22-6 in the 1978 opener. Last week the Spokaneites were stopped by Eastern Washington 37-21.

It's the NWC league debut for both the Bucs and Lutes in a rivalry which dates back to 1931. PLU leads in the series 20-12 and enjoys a seven game win streak.

PLU's Mark Accimus, the NWC's number two rusher in 1977, injured in pre-season, may give his knee a test today.

LUTE-A-TOOT

SCOTT WESTERING (80), sophomore end, a UCLA transfer, was a grid All-American and state high hurdles champ at Washington High School.

STEVE PINNING (78), junior tackle from Thousand Oaks, Calif., played football and rugby as a frosh at the U.S. Military Academy.

ROY CHAPMAN (90), a future barrister who maintains law and order from his defensive end slot, was All-City at Foss High School.

BRIAN TROOST (57), junior linebacker, a fine arts major from Lynnwood, was a second team NWC all-star last year.
